

Sarbanes-Oxley

The Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 was implemented to improve Corporate Governance and accountability. One of the offshoots of the Act is the requirement for public companies to track their hardware and software assets and to document those controls under Section 404 of the law.

Most companies have a general awareness of the Sarbanes-Oxley regulations and requirements, but few are sure of the best way to achieve and maintain compliance, and thus protect their company from sanctions and litigation.

The IT specialists at Cynthia Farren Consulting have a thorough understanding of the requirements and have been implementing similar controls for over 10 years. We can help you implement the necessary controls in your organization to meet this requirement.
